From the Chief Executive Officer

Happy New Year, from me personally and the WHRO team! January is a time when I reflect on the past year's achievements and prepare for the many exciting ventures we have in the works at the station. It is certainly a very busy time here at WHRO Public Media as we continue to grow our local newsroom, prepare for highly anticipated PBS program premieres, and plan more community events.

I am proud to say that in this new year, the WHRO newsroom officially has nine full-time journalists staff, each of whom is committed to covering local news stories in our area. Our plan is to add three additional reporters in 2023. We intend to start sharing a WHRO Reports newsletter early this year, and I am excited to let you know that we have 120,000 email addresses that will receive this informative newsletter. We hope to grow our journalism endowment to $10 million dollars by the first quarter of 2023 and to reach fifteen million by the end of the year. Local journalism carries the responsibility of accurately reporting news and information that the public deserves to know. WHRO is eager to continue the expansion of our newsroom to bring our community trusted, local reporting.

Animal and pet lovers, get ready for Season 3 of All Creatures Great and Small! WHRO is excited to host an ACGS Season 3 premiere screening and reception at the station on Thursday, January 5th at 6:30 p.m. For those who can't make it to the celebratory screening, Season 3 will premiere on WHRO TV 15 Sunday, January 8th, at 9 p.m. For those who haven't yet discovered All Creatures Great and Small, the show follows a young veterinary surgeon as he treats animals throughout the Yorkshire Dales in the 1930s. The series is one of our favorite PBS programs, and for those who don't know, my wife Missy, and I are devoted cat lovers. We have four cats; Marcus, Annie, Rocher, and Godiva. Our cats were foster kittens that my wife and I fell in love with and kept. Fortunately, she keeps me around as well.

WHRO is once again partnering with Independent Lens. Mark your calendars for an upcoming documentary screening series that is being put together by WHRO's Emerging Leaders Board. Throughout the year, the board will be working with Independent Lens, America's home for independent documentary film, to provide Indie Lens Pop-Ups, a neighborhood series that brings people together for film screenings and community-driven conversations. The upcoming season features stories of people facing adversity and overcoming incredible odds. You can check out the full Indie Lens screening schedule by visiting whro.org/events

Lastly, I hope you have been enjoying WHRO's newest oldies radio station, WFOS Time Machine Radio, broadcast on 88.7 & 99.3 FM or online at TimeMachineRadio.org where you can stream live—anytime, anywhere. The new station has quickly become a staff favorite. Folks are specifically loving Today In Rock History, a morning radio show hosted by Paul Shugrue, which presents a 60 second journey through time—full of factoids, historical moments, and the sounds that shaped musical history from that day. I look forward to seeing how Time Machine Radio flourishes this year, as I am thrilled with the feedback we have received thus far!

The work we do at WHRO would not be possible without your support. As we start 2023, I want to say thank you for being so generous throughout the last year. We look forward to serving you this year by continuing to provide the informative news, programs and music that you enjoy.

Tuesday, January 17, 9:00 p.m.

A new biography of the influential author whose groundbreaking anthropological work would challenge assumptions about race, gender and cultural superiority that had long defined the field in the 19th century.

American Masters: Roberta Flack

Tuesday, January 24, 9:00 p.m.

Follow the music icon from a piano lounge through her rise to stardom. From "First Time Ever I Saw Your Face" to "Killing Me Softly," Flack's virtuosity was inseparable from her commitment to civil rights. Detailing her story in her own words, the film features exclusive access to Flack's archives and interviews with Rev. Jesse Jackson, Peabo Bryson and more.

Nature: Soul of the Ocean

Wednesday, January 25, 8:00 p.m.

Take a deep breath and experience the complex world of ocean waters. Nature shows a never-before-seen look at how life underwater coexists in a marriage of necessity.

Fight the Power: How Hip Hop Changed the World

Tuesday, January 31, 9:00 p.m.

This series tells the story of hip hop as a political tool for speaking truth to power. The series includes first-hand accounts from some of rap's most integral players and deconstructs the origins of this bold and revolutionary art form through the voices of those who were there at the start, creating an anthology of how it became a cultural phenomenon against the backdrop of American history.

Memory Wars: Exploring A Troubled Legacy

Beginning in January, WHRV offers an introspective look at how a nation came to grip with its troubled legacy. Produced by Mallory Noe-Payne, who often anchors news coverage from Virginia Public Media in Richmond, Memory Wars traces the internal struggle and narrative Germany faced in the years following World War II. It's a fascinating look at how a nation confronts its own past dark period and the lessons other nations, including the United States, can learn from it. The series includes conversations with columnist Michael Paul Williams, Williams is the first African American to offer commentary for the Richmond Times-Dispatch and was awarded the Pulitzer Prize for his writing on the confederate monuments in Richmond and the protests around them after the death of George Floyd. Noe-

Payne and Williams combine to explore the modern-day parallels of a how a nation can look at issues that challenge its identity. The six-part production airs Thursdays at 1 p.m. during January.

And, to make room for our growing journalism staff, we decided to do a major overhaul of our library. For months, we've been dusting off, boxing, and getting ready for our members' record event. If you're a fan of vinyl, we have thousands of albums up for grabs as well as plenty of CDs and books from all of our musical genres to get your new year bursting with joy. For a donation of $75 you can join us Saturday, January 21, from 10 a.m. – 3 p.m. in the WHRO Teleconference Center.

The Composer as Conductor

Last month, in observance of the birthday of Jean Sibelius, we aired a recording of a transatlantic broadcast of the composer conducting a performance of his Andante Festivo. It was a part of the celebration of the 1939 World's Fair, which, the announcer said, "marks the beginning of a new era...of...peace." That peace would be shattered later that year, but that is another story.

However, that broadcast got us thinking about how composers fare on the podium. One might think that a composer, who is closer to music than most people, would be the perfect person to bring the printed score to life. Well, it ain't necessarily so.

In his classic book The Great Conductors, Harold Schonberg recognizes several composers who were also fine conductors. Jean Baptiste Lully "has legitimate claim to being called the first of the great conductors," says Schonberg. Lully died in 1687, a result of an infection brought about by impaling his foot with the staff that he was using to beat time, thus giving new meaning to the term "stick technique." Schonberg also mentions Spontini, von Weber, Berlioz, Wagner and Mendelssohn as heading the list of outstanding composer-conductors in the 19th century.

Because of his deafness, Beethoven was a special case. He could always hear the music inside his head, but in later life could not hear the orchestra. At the premiere of the Ninth Symphony, the concertmaster told the players to watch him and ignore Beethoven, whose podium gestures were at odds with the score. Eventually, the contralto soloist had to turn the composer around so he could see the applause from the audience.

Closer to our time, Gustav Mahler was an outstanding conductor, if also very self-indulgent and subjective. His more reserved contemporary, Richard Strauss, was also a fine conductor, especially of his own music. And Leonard Bernstein, whose interpretation of Mahler's music brought it to wider acclaim, was dynamic in front of an orchestra.

And then there was Tchaikovsky, who was neurotic and fearful when facing an orchestra, at least at first. According to reports, he literally thought that his head was going to fall off, so he conducted with one hand holding his head, just in case. In later years he became more comfortable on the podium and turned into at least an adequate conductor. His head never did fall off.

The Beloved Show is Back!

Wedding bells chime and animal ailments abound as Masterpiece presents the highly anticipated third season of All Creatures Great and Small, based on the bestselling memoirs by veterinarian James Herriot and starring a beloved ensemble cast led by Nicholas Ralph. Season 3 of the acclaimed series airs in seven episodes, beginning Sunday, January 8.

About Season 3

Ralph (The Devil's Light) stars as the young James Herriot who, in season 3, is struggling to balance his growing responsibilities at the veterinary practice with his responsibilities as the newly wedded husband to Helen Alderson, played by Rachel Shenton (Academy Award® winner, The Silent Child). Helen, herself, faces difficulties letting go of her old life on the family farm with her father and sister and finding her new place within the walls of Skeldale House.

Callum Woodhouse (The Durrells in Corfu) returns as Tristan Farnon, who has at last passed his exams and must now face the world as a qualified vet, while Anna Madeley (Mr. Selfridge) returns as motherly housekeeper Mrs. Hall, who is beginning to open herself up to a future outside of her duties managing the household.

As war with Germany looms on the horizon, Siegfried Farnon, the irrepressible but unpredictable proprietor of Skeldale House, played by Samuel West (Hyde Park on Hudson), contends with painful memories of his own experiences during the First World War, when he served in combat with the Army Veterinary Corps. And Patricia Hodge (Roadkill) is back as Mrs. Pumphrey, the wonderfully eccentric owner of Tricki, the pampered Pekingese.

Announcing The Yorkshire Vet

The Yorkshire Vet is a documentary series that follows the veterinary practice that inspired the hit series All Creatures Great and Small. The series features two vets—Peter Wright and Julian Norton, partners at Skeldale Veterinary Centre in North Yorkshire. Peter, the current head of the practice, was a trainee with the beloved veterinarian and writer James Herriot (the pen name of author Alf Wight) in the country market town of Thirsk.

The current vet practice provides care to both farm animals and pets, with a sometimes-blurred line between the two. Viewers will see real-life cases featuring llamas, cows, sheep, goats, donkeys, swans, pigs, dogs, hamsters and more. Since the program showcases a real vet practice and numerous surgeries, there is a bit more blood than America viewers may be used to in American-made programs, and not all of the cases featured have a happy ending. Yet, through it all, what shines forth is the compassion and love that the doctors demonstrate for both the animals and their human caretakers.

Watch the premiere of The Yorkshire Vet Sunday, January 8, 7 p.m on WHRO TV-15.

Write This Down

If you are in grades K-5 and like to write, pick up those pencils! We want to hear your best stories. WHRO Public Media invites kindergarten through 5th grade students to create a great story, illustrate it and enter it in the PBS KIDS Writers Contest. Stories can be fact or fiction, poetry or prose, and will be judged on originality, creative expression, storytelling and integration of illustrations.

Student entries can be submitted in either the general or environmental category. The general category encourages students to write and draw whatever they would like, letting their imaginations run wild. For the environmental category, students create an innovative story with an environmental topic or theme. Students can write about recycling, climate change or preserving nature, for example. This category was added to the contest in 2018 as part of WHRO's Batten a special PBS KIDS Certificate, Firstplace and second-place winners will be selected in each grade level for each category. Additionally, many of the PBS KIDS Writers Contest stories are also featured on Ms. Martha Reads, a WHRO production that airs new episodes Fridays at 10 a.m. on Facebook.

WHRO recognizes the importance of giving students the opportunity to use their storytelling talents to spark creativity and develop critical thinking and written communication skills. We look forward to reading this year's great stories!

Don't wait to get started! The entry deadline is Friday, March 24.

Find the entry form and contest rules at whro.org/writerscontest
