From the Chief Executive Officer

In today's modern world, online shopping has become overwhelmingly popular, and as a result, we are receiving more boxes at our doorsteps than ever before. This increase in demand for cardboard has caused paper factories to shift their operations towards cardboard specifically, which has led to a significant rise in paper prices. At WHRO, we are also feeling the impact of this trend, with a 40% increase in our paper costs, including the cost of producing our member-exclusive monthly publication, Dimensions.

To adapt to these changes and to better serve our members, we have decided to transform this publication into a quarterly impact statement. Rather than providing the monthly program guide, the new Dimensions magazine will showcase the positive impact that WHRO is making in the community every day with your support. The new, quarterly Dimensions print magazine will land in your mailbox in August. There will not be a July issue.

We are excited about this new direction and hope that you will enjoy it too. The great news is our TV guides are online at whro.org/tvguide. For those who still prefer a printed version of our TV schedule by mail, you can make that request at whro.org/tvguide or by calling our Member Services Team at 757-889-9499. Additionally, later in this issue, you will find an FAQ section that will answer questions related to the future of Dimensions.

We've always had pride at WHRO. June is Pride Month, and we are a proud sponsor of the 2023 Hampton Roads PrideFest, happening on June 24 in Norfolk's Town Point Park. PrideFest is the largest annual Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender, Queer (LGBTQ+) festival in Virginia and the City of Norfolk's largest one-day festival. Join us for a day of live entertainment, vendors and fun activities for all ages. Did you know the event also has the only PrideFest Boat Parade in the United States, underlining the region's connections with the 300-year maritime history of our port cities?

WHRO has been a presenting sponsor for many years, and we can't wait to be present at this year's PrideFest. Visit the WHRO booth to play games and pick up some public media swag. We hope to see you there, and please, come say hello if you do decide to attend.

As we also celebrate Father's Day in June, I would like to take a moment to express how grateful I am for the joy that my children, Jillian and Bertel, bring to my life every day. Wishing all the dads out there a happy Father's Day.

Lastly, our next TV membership drive happens this month from June 3–11. We have an exciting lineup of programs for you. I hope you will join us for these great shows and continue to support the content that you love. Without you, we would not be able to continue all the work we do.

Thank you for your support!

Endeavour on Masterpiece: Prelude

An orchestra soiree, a much-anticipated performance and an abandoned warehouse are scenes for a trio of deaths. Morse's investigation turns up an unsettling connection to the past. Thursday gets a tempting offer, as does Joan.

The Great American Recipe Season 2

Monday, June 19, 9:00 p.m.

Meet a new group of home cooks from across the country as they compete to win The Great American Recipe. This week's challenges include preparing a dish that defines who they are and cooking a recipe that showcases their geographical region.

American Experience: Casa Susanna

Tuesday, June 27, 8:00 p.m.

In the 1950s and '60s, when failure to wear gender-appropriate clothing was illegal across most of the country, a community of cross-dressing men found refuge at a modest house in the Catskills region of New York. Named after its matriarch, Casa Susanna provided community and validation for its guests.

WHRV: Up All Night

June 21st brings the Summer Solstice—the longest day of the year. So, I decided to use our prolonged sunlight to look at what airs here late nights after the sun finally does set. Evenings on 89.5 FM are chock-full of great music and news. It's a perfect backdrop to getting those end-of-day chores done—or in some cases, for overnight workers, just as the workday begins.

89.5 began offering overnight programming on January 1, 1983. Late-night announcers quickly learned there was a loyal audience, and over the years, they heard from students cramming for finals, third-shift shipyard and hotel workers, and plenty of people whose circadian rhythms just had them up enjoying the early morning hours.

Our overnight hours have been a mixture over the years with syndicated and locally hosted classical, blues, folk and jazz programs. Today, the BBC provides breaking news weekday mornings, our jazz producer Jae Sinnett anchors early Saturdays, and on Sunday mornings, Steve Cushing hosts and produces Blues Before Sunrise from WBEZ in Chicago. The show has been heard nationwide for over 30 years and showcases blues as part of a cultural landscape that includes jump and jive, rhythm and blues, swing, doo wop, gospel, comedy, and recitation.

And if you can't quite make it (in the words of Sinatra) to the "wee small hours of the morning," there's still plenty of late evening offerings to enjoy like Sinnett in Session, Lost in the Shuffle, Mountain Stage, Juke in the Back and Folk Alley.

There's quite a legacy of late-night listening on WHRV. Regardless of the reason, if you're up, tune in. There's unique and intriguing programming all day and night here on WHRV.

What I Composed On My Summer Vacation

June brings us festivals, the end of school, balmy weather and thoughts of getting away and relaxing. Composers, like the rest of us, like to get away on vacation, though in most cases, they take their work with them, in the form of music in their heads. Sometimes, composers' exposure to foreign places has resulted in compositions that might otherwise not have been written. Here are some examples.

Sir Edward Elgar and his wife enjoyed vacationing in Italy, in the town of Alassio. In memory of their visits, Elgar wrote the concert overture "In the South," Italy being south of England, of course. The work is subtitled "Alassio." On their way to and from Italy, the Elgars passed through Germany, the result being the suite of pieces called "From the Bavarian Highlands."

Tchaikovsky enjoyed visiting Italy also, grateful to exchange the grimmer Russian climate for the bright Mediterranean sunshine. His destination was the beautiful city of Florence, and the compositions that came from his vacations there were the string sextet "Souvenir of Florence" and the colorful "Capriccio Italien."

Speaking of Russia, Johann Strauss, Jr. actually went to Russia for his summer vacations, visiting St. Petersburg to conduct concerts. One of the compositions from that time was the waltz "Farewell to St. Petersburg." He also brought his orchestra to America, presenting concerts in Boston and writing, on his departure, another valedictory waltz, "Farewell to America."

Jacques Offenbach, French composer of frothy operettas, visited the United States for the American Centennial celebrations in 1876 and, for the occasion, wrote his "American Eagle Waltz" for Jules Levy, the leading cornetist of the day.

One of the most relaxing and enjoyable summer vacations was Antonin Dvorak's in the summer of 1893. He visited the Czech community in Spillville, Iowa, on the banks of the Turkey River. While among his transplanted countrymen, he played the church organ, took long walks in the countryside, drank beer in the inn and wrote, in the space of a month, the enchanting "American" quartet.

For well over a century, Algeria was a French colony. Camille Saint-Saens used to visit that North African country for his vacations, trips that inspired the "Suite Algerienne" with its stirring "French Military March."

A vacation trip by Madame Nadezhda von Meck and her children resulted in a set of fascinating and obscure works for piano. It was von Meck, you may recall, who offered a pension to Tchaikovsky to allow him to devote himself solely to composing music. During a European tour, the von Meck family was joined in Switzerland by a young Frenchman, Claude Debussy, who accompanied the family in their musical soirees. He also made piano transcriptions of works by Saint-Saens, Schumann and Tchaikovsky, scored for two pianos.

It seems that Felix Mendelssohn never took a real vacation. He was always on the move around Europe, conducting new works, re-introducing Bach to the world, opening concert halls, visiting royalty and performing as pianist and organist. His travels took him to Scotland in 1829 and Italy in 1833. These trips resulted in two of his best-known works, the "Scottish" and the "Italian" symphonies.

And so, some musical postcards for this vacation month. And let us remind you that wherever you travel to get away from it all, WHRO FM can be with you online, with music by all of the above and many others.

My First Time at the Great Computer Challenge

“Good morning and welcome to the 38th Annual Great Computer Challenge!”

It was my first time volunteering at the Great Computer Challenge, or GCC for short. This annual competition put on by WHRO Public Media and the Consortium for Interactive Instruction (C.I.I.), and hosted at Old Dominion University’s (ODU) Webb Center, allows grade school students to compete in computer-based challenges such as graphic design, cybersecurity, CAD (computer-aided drafting and design), and many more.

All of the volunteers that have been here for prior GCC competitions are so excited to be back in person after being virtual for the past two years. Morning setup goes smoothly under the direction of Angela Franklin, the competition’s director and WHRO’s C.I.I. coordinator. Volunteers are assigned to either the registration desk, to monitor the competition rooms, or to be runners that assist the teams and monitors with any questions that may come up during the competition. Since it was my first time, I was assigned to be a floater so I could get a feel for all of the roles and help out wherever I was needed.

Once the students and their teacher sponsors started coming in, I could see that they were excited that the competition was in person this year. After checking in, the students sit in on a rules review for the competition so that everything remains fair for everyone. The students make their way to their assigned rooms, which are grouped by competition category. And then... the competition begins! Students get three hours to solve challenge prompts created by the judges, many of whom are ODU professors in the fields in which the students are competing. During that time, teachers and parents are given the opportunity to try their hand at the challenges as well, just for fun. Once time is up, the students get to have some lunch and relax a bit while the judges comb over the students’ work. During this time, the volunteers can have a delicious lunch provided by ODU’s catering staff.

Once judging is over, the awards ceremony can take place! We hear some encouraging words from WHRO’s President and CEO, Bert Schmidt; Scott Wheeler, CEO of Bay Power Solutions; WHRO’s Vice President of Education Services, Elmer Seward; and Candice Goodin, executive director of Client Services at ODU. Now we can get to the awards... but first, raffles! Everyone (teachers, parents, students, judges, and volunteers) is encouraged to complete a survey so the GCC coordinators and volunteers can make each year better than the last. More importantly, the survey is an entry into the raffle for some fabulous prizes donated by our generous sponsor Bay Power Solutions! NOW we can get to the awards! There are ribbons, medals, plaques, and gigantic trophies to give out. Awards go to honorable mention, third, second, and first place teams in each of the categories. The students are so excited when their teams are called up to the stage to receive their awards.

Afterward, the students are able to go back to their competition rooms and look over the judges’ comments and collect their things and go home. The volunteers monitor the kids as they pack up, do a final sweep of the rooms to make sure nothing has been left behind, and pack up any remaining GCC swag before heading home themselves. It was such a great time seeing how much fun everyone had, and I am so excited for next year when I can volunteer again!

The WHRO Voice: A Connection to Local News

The WHRO Voice continues to expand its offering that helps connect blind and vision impaired members of the community to local news sources. Among its many broadcast services, WHRO Public Media has been providing radio reading programs for the blind and visually impaired for 42 years. From the beginning, it has placed an emphasis on connecting listeners with their local newspapers. This work continues as staff and volunteers have added more community newspaper readings through the years.

“During the last half of 2022, we completed our post-pandemic volunteer staffing, allowing us to provide exclusively “local” newspaper readings seven days a week, year-round,” explained James Holzer, who coordinates the programs and volunteer staff for the streaming radio service.

“During the pandemic, volunteers had to read newspapers remotely from their homes every weekday using free audio recording applications like Audacity to create mp3 audio files which they sent to me for broadcast over the WHRO Voice stream,” Holzer explained. “During that time, we took the opportunity to update our Norfolk studios and welcomed back our volunteer readers for “live” readings in April, 2022. Many of our readers who read remotely from their homes also continue to produce recordings which allowed us to expand our coverage of local newspapers throughout southeastern Virginia.”

Each week, The WHRO Voice produces 45 hours of “local” readings and programs from nearly every daily and weekly newspaper throughout southeastern Virginia. This includes readings from The Virginian-Pilot, Daily Press, Suffolk News-Herald, Virginia Gazette (Williamsburg), Eastern Shore Post, Tidewater News (Franklin), The Flagship (Military) and the Tidewater Hispanic News (en español). They also produce a weekly half-hour audio news magazine modeled after NPR's popular All Things Considered as well as a weekly reading of grocery ads from area supermarkets and, of course, the popular Short Story Hour. On Saturdays, the Voice will be adding a one-hour local magazine production which will include talented disabled teens and adults showcasing their artistic and literary abilities. Plans are also in the works to co-produce a broadcast with a local chapter of the Lions whose members are primarily vision impaired. During the evening and early morning hours, programming is supplemented with regional and national readings from The Virginia Voice in Richmond.

The service is supported by 70 volunteer readers, but they aren't just behind the microphone. Staff and volunteers enjoy getting out into the community as well. Earlier this year, representatives of the Voice jointly presented an educational program with Bill Caruso, a teacher with the Virginia VA Department for the Blind & Vision Impaired (DBVI), at the Williamsburg Landing retirement community. And, as they have done in past years, the WHRO Voice continues to be present at special Virginia Stage Company productions featuring audio description services.

You can find a full schedule of The Voice's programs here: schedule.whro.org
