@WHRO Public Media

From the Chief Executive Officer

I can't believe we are already in November—this year has flown by! As I look back over the last 11 months, I'm so proud of the work that we have done this year. Of course, we don't do it for awards, but I do enjoy when others acknowledge our staff and their hard work.

WHRO Public Media was presented with two unique awards recently. The station won FBI Norfolk's 2021 Director's Community Leadership Award. For decades the FBI has worked with WHRO to increase awareness about important programs, such as civil rights and public corruption campaigns. We were also presented with the 2022 Global Diplomacy Award from Norfolk Sister Cities.

At this year's 54th Annual Public Media Awards ceremony, our Education team took home the coveted Overall Excellence in Innovation award for its Immersive Environmental Learning Van Program. This unique program is a collaboration between WHRO and the Virginia Stage Company. This award is just the latest of many that WHRO staff have won this year including Telly Awards, Emmy Awards and numerous journalism awards. You can see all of this year's awards at whro.org/awards Congratulations to everyone who has been a part of these great projects this year!

I was thrilled to see so many of you at our events last month. We have another great lineup for you in November. We're delighted to partner with the Art Museums of Colonial Williamsburg for a Classical Open Mic in their auditorium in conjunction with their new exhibit, "Making Music in Early America." Join us on Saturday, Nov. 19, 4-6 p.m. for a fun, casual afternoon celebrating the vibrancy of our local classical music community. Museum admission will be free from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., so take some time to enjoy the art while you are there.

WHRO is also once again a sponsor of Smartmouth Brewing's concert series. The next concerts are happening Nov. 18-20 with a weekend-long Cider Fest and the Nov. 25 Dark Arts Fest. You can find details on all WHRO events at whro.org/events Music lovers will also enjoy a new program on the Time Machine Radio Network. Paul Shugrue and the Rock 'n Roll Hall of Fame launched last month. Tune in each weekday from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. to hear some of the greatest music from artists inducted into the Hall of Fame along with interesting factoids, trivia and memories from some of rock's most memorable acts. Blues fans can continue to hear Jerry Carter's Blues Traffic Jam on weekdays from 3 p.m. to 7.

Thank you for your continued generous support of local public media. Without you, we couldn't do the work we do.

Enjoy the fall!

WHRV: Your Home for the Holidays

November kicks off the holiday season, and there's nothing more special during this time of year than memories of home. To help kindle those thoughts, we've asked some local musical performers to share songs about home and the stories behind them. You can hear these wonderful features all month long on 89.5 and on whro.org.

Also, if Thanksgiving dinner is at your house this year, fear not as once again A Splendid Table will host the traditional Turkey Confidential from 12-2 p.m. on Thanksgiving Day. Tune in to hear how host Francis Lam and his guests help navigate the busiest cooking day of the year. It's "turkey triage" just when you most need it! Also, our in-house Chef and Jazz Producer Jae Sinnett will be featuring several dishes on WHRO's Facebook page that will truly outshine anything Aunt Frieda brings to the table!

We hope you'll make WHRV your radio home, not only for the holidays, but all year long.

November Birthdays

Along with Thanksgiving and the beginning of the holiday season, November brings the birthday anniversaries of several great American composers.

John Philip Sousa was born on November 6, 1854, in Washington, D.C. The third of 10 children of Portuguese/German parents, Sousa quickly progressed in music, studying violin, piano, flute and several brass instruments. Sousa wanted to join a clown band but his father, a trombonist in the Marine Band, enlisted the 13-year-old Sousa instead. Although mostly remembered for his many marches, he also composed several operettas and helped with the invention of the sousaphone.

It is believed Scott Joplin was born in Texarkana, Texas, sometime around November 24, 1868. He was the second of 6 children, and his father was a former slave. He got his first musical experiences from his parents; his father played violin and his mother sang and played banjo. Starting at age 7 Joplin began playing piano while his mother cleaned. Joplin was ambitious with his studies, and at age 16 he was also teaching mandolin and guitar. Though he became known as the "King of Ragtime," Joplin's musical ambitions reached beyond that genre. Pianist Lara Downes, who recently released a new album titled Reflections: Scott Joplin Reconsidered, describes him as "an innovator who merged traditions and histories to make music at the crossroads of the American future."

Aaron Copland was born in Brooklyn, New York, on November 14, 1900. He was the youngest of five children born to parents of Lithuanian origins, and the family lived above their shop in Brooklyn. His mother played piano and sang, and arranged for the Copland children to have music lessons.

His sister Laurine attended the Metropolitan Opera School and frequently brought home libretti for Aaron to study. At the age of 15, he decided that he was going to be a composer. After initial training in New York, he traveled to Paris and studied with the famed teacher Nadia Boulanger, who said she could instantly tell his talent.

Along with music by these and other American composers, we'll also have programming in celebration of Thanksgiving on November 24, including new editions of the popular holiday specials Giving Thanks (10 a.m.) and Every Good Thing (3 p.m.) from American Public Media.

WHRO Public Media Launches New Native American and Indigenous TV Channel

WHRO Public Media is pleased to bring First Nations Experience (FNX), the first and only Native American and Indigenous TV channel, to southeastern Virginia. The FNX channel presents Native American stories and content, creating a diverse and entertaining channel across all media platforms 24/7. The unique non-profit channel is the result of a shared vision and values between the San Manuel Band of Mission Indians and PBS/KVCR, both located in San Bernardino, California. Through Native-produced and themed documentaries, dramatic series, nature, cooking, gardening, and children's and arts programming, the FNX Channel illustrates Native American and indigenous people's lives and cultures worldwide. FNX is truly the voice of Native American and indigenous communities.

Virginia is a state of rich cultural heritage. In 1607 the English documented many Algonquian-speaking tribes in what is now Virginia. Today, seven of the historic tribes of Virginia are descendants of these Algonquian speakers. Of the more than 20 tribes belonging to the Siouan-speaking peoples of the Piedmont and mountain regions today—one tribe in Virginia, two in North Carolina, and one on the state line between them—still live in either Virginia or North Carolina. In addition, there are descendant communities of native peoples in all of the states around the bay.

Today, the cultures of Virginia's tribes and descendant communities are vibrant and thriving, a testimony to the fortitude of their ancestors and their peoples' continuing determination to retain and reclaim their heritage. We celebrate Virginia's tribes.

Get To Know WHRO's Emerging Leaders

WHRO's Emerging Leaders Board is about to start its eighth year as a crucial part of WHRO Public Media. The ELBows, as we affectionately call them, are a unique group of young professionals who are passionate about public media and who are interested in supporting its mission. Their mission is to seek new and unique opportunities to engage millennials in public media.

To get to know them, station liaison to the Board, Nancy Rogan, interviewed two members. Katie Elder, who is our current chair, and Rhena Hicks, who has been on the board since 2016.

Katie Elder is the development specialist at Population Media Center, which raises global sustainability by telling transformative stories.

Rhena Hicks is the executive director of Freedom Virginia, a 501(c)4, which focuses on economic security.

KATIE

RHENA

What made you want to join?

KATIE

I was the event coordinator at Slover, where I worked with station staff to partner on programming the board was doing. I got to know them and I joined in January of 2018.

RHENA

I have always had a love of public media. I actually heard the promotion for the board listening to WHRV and what intrigued me was that it was dedicated to young professionals to engage other young professionals.

Why is public media important to you?

KATIE

I enjoy factual news and great entertainment. I like that it has stories, music, information and all sorts of great media content in one place you can trust.

RHENA

It has always played an important role in my life, such as PBS Kids. I am on the same page as Katie where I get my news. Not only on a national level, NPR, PBS, but local content. Just makes me feel more connected to my community and I have a sense of what is going on.

KATIE

I think we agree on a lot of things.

RHENA

Totally.

What is your favorite part of being on the ELBows?

KATIE

I have been able to get to know a lot of people around Hampton Roads that I would not have been able to meet. While we are like-minded, I think we have a lot of diversity on the board. And getting to work with a variety of community partners is great.

RHENA

If Katie could stop stealing all of my answers, that would be great. Basically, all of that, plus it is also nice to bring others in. I can think a handful of my peers who come to our events and are now more aware of public media from me joining. It is nice to expand the audience.

What do you feel is the most fun or impactful event the board has done?

RHENA

That is a tough one. I would say the most fun has always been the NEON Festival. It is so big and community-based, a ton of fun and joyous experience.

KATIE

I agree with Rhena about NEON; I also think most impactful are our Independent Lens screenings. We get to put a local spin on the important topics with local experts.

RHENA

I also think the most impactful were the events about women veterans, which was made into a podcast, and millennial moms.

What big ideas would you like to see for the board?

RHENA

I would love to do a WHRO book club and partner with a bookstore. I really think they are coming back.

KATIE

Good answer, Rhena. I am thinking more broadly. I would love to work with more departments at WHRO and also work more with Barry Graham and Paul Shugrue to do more music events.

Who do you think is funniest ELBow?KATIE

Me.

RHENA

I would say definitely me. I would also say the other one is Sam Black; you may have heard of her. :)

KATIE

We are a very humble, modest group of professionals.

RHENA

(bursts out laughing)

Who on the board is the most millennial-like?KATIE

Rhena is. Have you seen her glasses?

RHENA

I would say myself too. I love a good avocado toast. Plus I like breweries. I love my glasses. I feel like I am a classic millennial.

What is your favorite Hampton Roads staple?KATIE

Umm, if someone came into town they would have to have an Orange Crush at Chicks. I would take them to a show at Tap House. And go for a walk on the ERT.

RHENA

That's a good one, Katie. I would go for a classic breakfast at Pancake House. Have a Smartmouth beer, see a concert at the NORVA, I love Lake Smith, and hop over the HRBT for Phoebus, and Fort Monroe.

Why should others join the board?RHENA

People should join. It is a great opportunity to take a deeper dive in your love for public media and experience this great group of people. I think it is one of the most unique boards I have ever been on. It is special. You get to have a hand in our local public media station.

KATIE

I agree with all that, and I would add that WHRO is the hub of connections in Hampton Roads. We have a wide reach in the community. You will love it.

Applications are now open to join WHRO's Emerging Leaders Board. Go to whro.org/elb to access the application and guidelines or contact Nancy Rogan, Community Engagement Officer nancy.rogan@whro.org

We believe in feeding potential.

For 58 years, Checkered Flag has been devoted to supporting the Hampton Roads community in which we're proud to do business. We also partner with over 65 local educators, charities, and community services to create economic opportunity, improve public health, and keep our children well nourished in mind, body and soul. Every road should lead to opportunity for our community. Come along for the ride.
